

Everest Base Camp Trek

Trip Overview

Everest Base Camp Trek or EBC Trek, is the most popular trek in the world. It is situated at 5364m in Solukhumbu district, Nepal. Everest Base Camp is one of the best Trekking destinations in Nepal. Being the highest mountain in the world, Mount Everest is the most outstanding peak in the world. It stands so tall that even reaching its base camp is a full adventure trekking in Nepal, which makes thousands of people all around the world tempted to experience its glory and beauty. Trekking towards Mount Everest Base Camp can easily be considered one of the most popular treks in Nepal. Due to the popularity of Sagarmatha among foreigners and Nepali trekkers, most of the tourists arrive for the EBC Trek.

The route to the base camp gives a splendid view of mountains over 5000 m and above. The route from Kathmandu to Everest Base Camp Trek starts with taking a flight to the World's most adventurous Airport Lukla from Kathmandu, then traveling by foot through Phakding, Namche Bazar, Tengboche, Dingboche, Thukla, Lobuche, and Gorakshep before reaching Everest Base Camp. The route to return is the same as well, and the view will remain just as beautiful from the opposite side as well. This most famous trekking route has a maximum altitude of 5,364 meters. On the EBC trekking, other snow-capped mountains in the Himalayas such as Ama Dablam, Pumori, Nuptse, and Thamserku peaks can be seen as well. Everest Base Camp Trekking can be trekked all around the year, but the busiest or most crowded season is spring, and because of the sunny days, the weather is warmer and dry making the scenery clearer and sharper. The months in which people generally climb or trek to Everest Base Camp Trekking are May and September, which is to avoid the harsh winter snows and summer monsoon rains.
