

Chulu East peak climbing

Trip Overview

Chulu East Expedition is one of the best peaks climbing in Nepal: Manang (round Annapurna Trek). Chulu East Peak is situated at 6584m from sea level. Chulu East Peak is situated high above the Manang valley just south east of Chulu West and includes the remarkable Annapurna Circuit Trek. Chulu East Peak stands tall at an altitude of 6,584 m. NMA categorised Chulu East in Group “B” and has made it available for climbing. Both Chulu East and Chulu Far East which are climbed from the same base camp, and high camps and both are covered under Chulu East permit. The normal route to climb Chulu East peak is the north-east ridge from a Base Camp on the moraine at 5334m. Most climbers make the Chulu east peak summit and back from Base Camp in one long day, although some have established a higher camp somewhere below the Chulu East Peak. Technically the climb is undemanding but you are recommended to be physically fit and if you are familiar with the use of equipment, crampons, harness, ice axe, tying knots and handling climbing ropes, it would surely add to your advantage. Although most of the climbing involves walking roped together, including the glacial crossings and steep scree slopes, it will come easy if you are fit and have little knowledge of climbing.

You will find this expedition adventurous and easy, but as you get higher, it gets tougher and we will have to give enough time to our body to adapt to high altitude and also make use of different equipment in order to climb the peak. And as you climb the peak, you will have the most beautiful views on surrounding peaks and lush green forests of Nepal and enjoy the gorgeous valley of Manang and its unique settlements by ethnic groups like Manangi, Sherpa, Thakali and Gurung. As you begin your journey, there are a number of mountain passes, villages settled snow-filled rocky and sloppy hills, beautiful landscapes, terraced farm fields, and a jungle full of flora and fauna. All these are sure to fascinate you and offer you a miraculous experience. We will also hike through the green meadows and the view of magnificent green hills is amazing. Chulu east peak climbing provides amazing views across to the Annapurna II, III and IV, Gangapurna, Glacier Dome, Dhaulagiri, Tilicho and Manaslu peaks. Chulu East Peak climbing will surely prove to be an unforgettable experience as Chulu east peak climbing is one of the most popular trips and for those who have been dreaming about mountaineering, Chulu East Peak is just the right mountain to begin with. Besides, Chulu East is an opportunity to learn the technique to make a summit and prepare yourself for more of the expeditions.
